ATTACK ON CAMPBELL TRUST A GEO. DAVIS ENTERPRISE

George Davis is held responsible for the attempt to break the James Campbell trust, brief mention of which is made in the cabled dispatches from San Jose yesterday. Davis is the guardian of the property of the minor children of the late James Campbell. He was appointed by Judge Gear less than a month ago without the consent of the Campbells, and the first result is the attempt to break the trust.

"No, it is not a friendly suit," said one of the attorneys who was interested in the matter during the hearing of the objections raised to the executors' accounts here. "Mrs. Parker is decidedly opposed to the attempt to break the trust. She wants the trust maintained as her late husband wished. The attempt to break it is made, under the ruling in the Fair will case, where it was held that such a trust could not be established in California. If the court sets aside the decree of distribution and declares the trust is invalid, Mrs. Parker will get one-half of the San Jose property and the other half will go to the children."

No one knows why the suit was brought in California instead of Honolulu where all the parties interested reside, unless it is because the trust property is located at San Jose. No matter if the trust is declared invalid as far as the California property is concerned it would not affect the estate in Honolulu which must still be continued as the "Estate of James V. Campbell."

The suit brought by Davis, as guardian for the minors, involves also the title to the St. James Hotel in San Jose which was conveyed to Miss Alice Campbell nominally for $175,000. Under the terms of the will this money should have gone into the trust, only the income to be apportioned among the heirs. It is the purpose of the suit to make a division of this amount rather than wait for the income. Under the will of James Campbell this money would be tied up in trust until twenty years after the death of the last survivor while if the trust is broken as regards the California property there will be so much more to divide up among the children now. Davis claims to represent three of the heirs in the proceedings brought before Judge Gear, and he probably appears for the two minor children in this petition to set aside the decree of distribution.

The petition will not be allowed to go uncontested. The executors of the estate are Mrs. Parker, J. O. Carter and Cecil Brown and they will oppose any distribution until it is conclusively shown that under the California law the trust is invalid.

FISH THRIVE ON THE YOUNG MOSQUITOES IN NEW JERSEY

ELIZABETH, N. J. July 12.—Ever since early spring, a mosquito brigade composed of local officials has been waging war on the "Jersey birds" in the marshes near here. Opinions differ about the results. The officers of the brigade, among whom are State Entomologist Smith, Major Ryan, Drs. O'Reilly and Stern of the Board of Health and Health Officer Richards, say they have got the mosquitoes on the run already, and if the rest of the State will only carry the war into the enemy's country, they predict, stories of Jersey mosquitoes will be ancient history before long.

The brigade says its campaign has already been partly successful. So also say those who live near the marshes; but residents of Elizabeth don't agree. They say that there was never before so many of the pests in town, and they think that the campaign has only driven the enemy from the strongholds to the higher ground in town. When many persons think of the $1,000 appropriation made by the City Council recently for the mosquito war they slap the latest intruder from their necks and cry, "Stung again!"

But whatever the result so far a great deal has been done toward putting the mosquitoes out of business. The plan followed is that of State Entomologist Smith. He believes that the larvae must be destroyed to do any real good, and has found that the eggs are laid and can develop only in still or stagnant water. So twelve miles of ditches have been dug to drain the marshes and a new ditch cutter is making more grooves in the mud every day.

The brigade is also oiling all pools that cannot be drained, as well as the sewer openings. There are also new kinds of mosquito killers at work that serve without salary. They are small fish which run from tidewater up into the trenches. They eat all the larvae in sight. The fish do as much good work as the oil, some say, and there is talk of stocking the ditches with them.

The town authorities and Mr. Smith viewed their breastworks and made tests yesterday. With them were members of the Newark Board of Health. Mr. Smith made some life-sized photographs of the fallen enemy.

The crusade in Elizabeth is only an experiment. It has been undertaken to show that the principle is right and that, if it were generally adopted in all the marshes of the State, the mosquitoes would have to go. It is explained that but for the continued rains recently which were all in favor of the insects, the success of the experiment would be more apparent.

William Kemp, an English comic actor who flourished during the last year of Queen Elizabeth, and who belonged to the same company as Shakespeare, and "created" Dogberry, danced from London to Norwich, a distance of 114 miles. He was accompanied by a servant, an umpire and a man with a tabor and pipe. Crowds hindered his start on February 11, 1680, and many met him at every place. Several tried to dance with him, but none could rival his pace; the most successful being women. Although delayed by a snowstorm, he did it in nine days, and on the way accepted a challenge or two, each time coming off best, except when a Chelmsford maiden of 14 danced till he was "ready to lie down." On his return he wrote an account of it, which ends with a warning to those with whom he had made wagers that if they did not pay up he would publish their names. The "Nine Days' Wonder," as the title runs, is a merry, readable pamphlet. Among other curious information in it is the statement that the customary way to deal with pickpockets at the theatre in those days was to tie them to a post.

LITERARY RELIC OF OLD HONOLULU

Old times of the early revolutionary era are recalled by the sight of a copy, lent to the Advertiser of "The Owl," dated Honolulu, July 14, 1888. Its title is extended to say the paper is "devoted to fun, fact, fancy, satire and social hits." A card in the upper left-hand corner says:

"The Owl, hatched and fed by Col. John Brash, R. S., will mount its perch the second Saturday of each month, and hoot for 25 cents a copy, or $2.50 a year. Proper subjects for humorous rhyme solicited."

This relic is No. 7 of the first and only volume ever begun. Col. Brash, who was a compositor who had gone blind, became disappointed in the returns from his agent and let The Owl die. This was not long before his own death. When he started the little sheet it was entirely written in rhyme by himself. To lighten his labor and give the paper variety, a few freelancers undertook to write half the paper in prose. One of them was "John F. Smith, if you please, a frequent outside contributor to the press."

Under the heading "Schoolmaster Abroad," the following skit appears whose butt was Captain Charles Hopkins, a white police officer who made a good deal of "news" in those days and left here for the Klondike:

"The following specimen of official documents speaks for itself:

Hon H I Jan 23th
Mr GASBH
Sir 'Jeas pay Mr M—— $1 as a gard at two Dol a day at cottage No. 400 Hawaiian Hotel.

Cop Police."
Among local hits the following is a sample, from "Startling Events Since Last Issue":

"Long-legged man, impatient to get to heaven, climbed roof of Fort street church. Higher than Palace wall. Try the Goddess of Liberty."

The palace wall allusion refers to the arrest of a general secretary of the Y. M. C. ., who was a tall man, when he peeped over the top of the 7-foot wall then surrounding the palace grounds to get blink of the king's jubilee celebrations at night the latter part of 1886.

Two pages of three columns each are entirely filled with Col. Brash's "Local Squibs for the Month," in eight-line verses. The colonel was fond of hitting Bandmaster Berger for his devotion to the Hawaiian national anthem, and his review on this occasion ends thus: Our threat would have been carried out.

Did Bismarck not resign,
Of sending Berger and his tune(!)
To Bingen on the Rhine,
We owe the people there a grudge,
And rare revenge 'twould be
To love them with that sauerkraut
mash,
"Hawaii Ponoi."

Harry Byng, a poetical barber, was a contributor. Lots of people will remember Harry, who turns up every few years as barber aboard some ocean liner touching here. Byng voiced the popular impatience of that time with the slow progress being made in constructing the Hawaiian Tramways Co.'s tracks, of which there is today a small survival, thus, taking the first verse and chorus of a five-verse poem:

Friends, keep your seats and listen
To my little bob-tailed rhyme,
About the King street railway line
That won't bloom out on time.
If Gribby does not stir his stumps,
Those horse cars will not run
Till Christmas comes with Santa Claus
In eighteen ninety-one.
Chorus:—I'm waiting for the railroad,
I'm sighing for the railroad,
I'm anxious for the railroad, and dying for a ride.

"Gribby" was Mr. Bribble, the engineer who directed the tramways construction.
Peace to the memory of Col. Brash, the blind bard. He did his part in making people know they lived, by tickling them, in those quiet old days of Honolulu.

THE NEW FRENCH REMEDY.

THERAPION. This successful remedy, used in the Continental Hospitals by Ricord, Rostan, Jobert, Velpeau, and others, combines all the desiderata to be sought in a medicine of the kind, and surpasses everything hitherto employed. THERAPION No. 1 maintains its world-renowned and well-merited reputation for damage to the kidneys, pains in the back, and kindred ailments, affording prompt relief where other well-tried remedies have been powerless. THERAPION No. 2 (for impurity of the blood, acute, suppurative, blotches, pains and swelling of joints, gout, rheumatism, & all diseases for which it has been too much a fashion to employ mercury, iodo-potassium &c., to the destruction of sufferers' teeth and ruin of health. This preparation purifies the whole system through the blood, and thoroughly eliminates all poisonous matter from the body. THERAPION No. 3 for exhaustion, sleeplessness, and all distressing consequences of dissipation, worry, overwork, &c. It possesses surprising power in restoring strength and vigor to those suffering from the enervating influences of long residence in hot, unhealthy climates. THERAPION is sold by the principal Chemists and Druggists throughout the world. Price in England, 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. In ordering state which of the three numbers is required, and observe that the word "THERAPION" appears on the British Government Stamp (in white letters on a red ground) affixed to every genuine package by order of His Majesty's Hon. Commissioners, and without which it is a forgery.
